

Anesthetic

*Laughed when I heard love's a heavy pain,
Hear my lament in the heavy rain,*

*Tell me what am I supposed to do?
When all I'm thinking about is you,*

*You were everything that ever meant,
That's when you gave me your back and went,*

*Back when you used to play with my heart,
When you were everything and I'm a part,*

*Love was my doctor and synthetic,
And you were my only anesthetic,*

*You left me sleepless, drunk by your sore wine,
I kissed your heart and you stepped on mine,*

*Love became a whip with iron thorns,
And you're the torturer which adorns,*

*You gave me wings, taught me how to fly,
And broke them off when I was in the sky,*

*As I was falling I smiled at you,
I was fascinated by the view,*

*You were the prettiest thing in air,
My beautiful angel soaring up there,*

*That's when you started laughing at me,
But it's your laugh that I was glad to see,*

*Tell me how am I supposed to act?
When my heart loves you even though it's cracked,*

*I remember the day when you were mad,
You threw everything that table had,*

*Remember that fork which got my eye?
In the hospital, you didn't drop by,*

*And when it was time to pay your quid,
I carried you on my other lid,*

*Did my heart deserve to split and break?
Was giving you all I had a mistake?*

*Tell me why are you doing this to me?
Have I reached this vile certainty?*

*I'm certain that I never did,
I thought you loved me, but whom I kid?*

*Cried when I heard love's a heavy pain,
Hear my gunshot in the heavy rain...*
